(The Baptists meet at Troy-the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church at Buffalo.) We have given during the week very full reports of the speeches, &c. at the various gatherings of note, and have printed so much of the Annual Statements as seemed to be of publie interest. While these gatherings have been well attended, and their reports of progress generally very gratifying to their friends, there seems to have been an unusual dearth of great men from a distance participating therein: the pulpit has been largely but not powerfully represented, and our own clergy have been unusually silent. Still there has been a great degree of zeal, and no small amount of talent displayed; quite enough to redeem the meetings from the censure of dullness if not to mark them with uncommon fame. The extraordinary conduct of the Temperance Delegates in turning women from their doors has created no small stir in the town, and seems to promise much excitement throughout the country. The undue warmth which characterized the discussion was anything but temperate. The Five Points House of Industry meeting last night was a new and interesting feature, and fitly closed the Anniversaries by a gratifying exhibition of practical re. sults in a long-neglected field at our very doors. The Presentation to Father Gavazzi at Metropolitan Hall drew an immense audience, and created much enthu-

CALIFORNIA.

The resources of California are well set forth in the Report of the Governor, Mr. Bigler, and of the Secretary of State, on the Census of 1852. This document occupies upward of fifty pages. Among the facts contained in it are the following:

In two years the population has increased thirty per cent., and it is thought that in ten years it will have, at least, quadrupled. There are, as at present estimated. 208,000 inhabitants, the annual increase being thirtynine per cent greater than that of the other States. If this augmentation continue, it is not difficult to prophccy the formation of a great empire on the Pacific in a very short space of time, composed of a population singularly varied in its elements, and stimulated, without gold mines even, to the successful industry peculiar to to satisfy, and who is never less pleased than when he our institutions

The productions and capital of the State, as reported in the document in hand, do not include those of El all unless be could not now and then be in the midst of Dorado, of Calaveras, and in part of two other counties, among the most wealthy and productive of the State, returns not having yet been made. The estimated value | Yet the Colonel has excellent talents, combined with of capital employed in Agriculture, Real Estate and Im- | a taste for classical literature, and is in the main a good

Capital supployed in Stock Farming and Calculation Agricultural Products ... $8,162,040 lent temper.

Land in calculation ... 1,197,490 desired for El Dorado and Calculation ... 1,197,490 desired for El Dorado and Calculation desired for El Dorado and Calculation desired for El Dorado desired for El Dorado desired for El Dorado desired for El Dorado desired for El Capital desired for El Dorado prevements, is as follows:

In the above estimate no land except in actual cultivation is included. The comparative agricultural wealth of California thus appears: In horses she is in advance of fifteen of the States; in mules of twenty-six States; milch-cows of twelve States; of work-oxen of eight; value of live stock of twenty States; barley only equaled by New-York : potatoes next to New-York and more than enehalf of all produced in the Union: wheat greater than ten of the States; oats, three-fourths of the other States: hay, exceeding nine of the States: mining, without a parallel : fruits, exceeding all the States in variety and one-half of them in quantity produced.

How far California has been profitable or unprofitable to the country at large, the expenses of the war, the costly intermediate agency of ships, steamboats and wagons, the diversion of labor and capital from the other States all considered, -- is not now the question. The extemporization of an empire, brilliant and successful beyond comparison in history, is exhibited in her marvelous career. Her annals are unparalleled. The proverbs of the past in politics are fairly upset by them. The power of self-government, the energy of individualism, were never so fully displayed as in the career of the men burled on her shores; digging and legislating, building, plowing, trading, with a rapidity and success that make all Europe stare, and even excite remark in this latitude. We remember being in Paris when a returned French Californian came to the American Legation to get fresh papers. He had made money in San Francisco. but he could not live in Paris any longer. Everything was policed up to the eyes, so restricted, so slow, so wanting in business economy. "Some architects," said he "have shown me plans for the Californian be thinking about the plan. They cannot comprehend | every day. such a community here in Paris. I must get back

This trait of individualism in California is the grandest product of her community. It is worth more than | Can it be necessary at this time of day to teach so simthe gold mines. In Europe every thing is amassed. The religion is centralized, whether at Rome or Oxford; the bardest muscle is absorbed and wasted in armies; business is overlaid with clumsy mediaeval restrictions, that render it comparatively lifeless, England excepted: the possport evatem is in full force along with the electric-telegraph even, and the social and industrial limbs are bound down with custom. But what a contrast is California to this! How personality sticks out! How self-sustentation is exhibited in universal labor, the distinction between fine and coarse professions being abrogated and all being literally hard-working men! How the power of physical restitution is exhibited in the rebuilding over and over again with almost magical quickness of burnt towns and cities!

The romance of Arabian fabulists has been equaled in the career of California-a nation being the hero, and not some lucky prince. The people but yesterday setting up their pioneer business, are already starting an expedition to Japan. The heary automata of the pastthe Chinese-to the number of twenty-five thousand, are and means of the onward people. We shall soon hear of their influence at home. The revolution whose success is just reported from China will not stop at a change of dynasties, with such a new influx of light from our Pacific coast. So, too, Japan: whether the ports are opened peaceably or not to our vessels matters not as regards the future. They will be opened by some means, and the California Expedition is a mere beginning in that quarter of a Japanese revolution.

In view of the vast career opening to us in California, it becomes our (-overnment to make a Pacific Railroad without loss of time. Young America must at least triumph on that question, even though, as observed by a veteran Democrat, the project will destroy the Demoeratic party and its strict construction of constitutional

One single fact exhibits with force the position of California, in regard to the older States. The space which the news from that quarter occupies habitually in our columns, is as great as that required by European intelligence. The demands upon our typography are thus suddenly doubled. With additional territorial annexation we shall be puzzled to accommodate the voluminous details of enterprise-the standard number of hideous disasters, showing that humanity is not deemed ss precious as gold-the deadly encounters-the gigantic projects, which such policy begets.

THE STREETS. We can perceive no improvement in cleaning the streets. When Mr. Accularius made that celebrated speech at Tammany Hall, we did not think it would be lowed by any reform, and we have not been disappointed. That street-cleaning is not a new subject, but we are hardly aware of any of greater moment to this commu. nity. It involves, either as it is attended to properly improperly, health and economy. It is estimated that the expense of clothing, outer and under, is increased fifty per cent, by the beastly state in which New-York is kept, and this alone costs the City many millions every year. The streets which the public most affect in order to enjoy fresh air, such as the Fifth av., are inconceivably dirty. When the mud is not over shoe-tops, the dust is a simoom. As for all the narrower streets, the fifth is absolutely leathsome. They afford a physical type of Aldermanie morals

It is most astonishing, most lamentable, most inexplicable, that this City of New-York, which should have some pride and honor, is the worst-governed community. in the world. Paris and London, notwithstanding their great size, are kept clean. Certainly Napoleon III., in the plenitude of his power, would be hucled from his threne if he allowed Paris to be like this City: and no Lord Mayor or Home Secretary could hold his place in England who would neglect the municipal interests of London as those of our town are neglected.

A lady informs us that her street has been cleaned three times in three years. Another correspondent, a shopkeeper, informs us that injury is constantly done to his stock by the penetrating qualities of the street dust. We have only to say to them and to others, that we see no hope for reform in the present indifference which pervades the community in regard to the great law of Nature-cleanliness.

The necessity for these offices in the embassy exists no longer, insemuch as the French has of late become the language of diplomatic intercourse at the Porte. Instead of dragoman a regular Secretary of the legation is to be appointed.

There is not a little gossip at the Capitol in relation to the proceedings of our new Commissioner to China (Mr. Humphrey Marshall), in connection with Commodore McAuley, now on the East India station. If the Colonel gets along smoothly in his new relations it will be a wender. He is one of those men whom it is hard s permitted to have his own way: a sort of political Mother Cary's chicken, who would not care to live at a storm. If he don't encourage the Chinese revolutionists it will not be because he is not fond of a row. hearted man, notwithstanding his irritable and trucu-

1,150,000 the Brick Church doings of Wednesday-have an insuperable aversion to the company and cooperation of women in the effective and responsible promotion of 2,500,600 the Temperance Cause. It can hardly be necessary to state that we have greater apprehension of injury to the Cause from the arbitrary exclusion of Women from the coursels of its leaders than from their prompt and cordial welcome thereto. If any question may fairly arise as to the delicacy or propriety of a woman's serving as an officer of a public meeting or member of its business mmittee, we hold that it is one which Woman is to solve for herself, whenever the question fairly arises, and and which Man is not called on to raise-which, indeed, it is gross impertinence on his part to raise when no woman manifests any qualms on the subject. There are many things which Woman is manifestly unfitted by nature to do: but we perceive no necessity for any arbitrary rule to forbid her doing them; and we think the Divines and Honorables who pushed her off the platform at the Brick Church meeting will live to think better of the matter That is all the following new light upon an important subject : "Commerce is the great strength of nations. It has been so in almost all instances in the past, and will ever be so in the future. Tyre, and Egypt, and Venice, and the Nether-lands, and Great Britain, successively becoming the mer-clants, became thereby the masters of the world. In all times to come, the battles for national supremacy must be ight from the decks of the merchantmen upon the ocean for that nation will be the greatest whose commerce is most extensive and presperous. The shrill whistle of the steam engine; the roar of the waters as they divide before the adcing prow; the sighing of the wind through the rigging or fleets," &c. &c.

A writer in The Daily Times, who urges the annexation of the Sandwich Islands, and whose views are explicitly adopted and approved by the editor, discloses

Commerce being the great strength of nations, o course the Jews of modern times, who devote them selves more exclusively to it than other men, must be the strongest people of the world. And all that the United States need do to get the lead of the universe is to abanden agriculture, manufactures and mining-to forsake industry and engage exclusively in trade. Then, pro-'cities! I told them the Americans would build the | ducing nothing, they will be able to buy and sell imeities in about the same time a French architect would mensely, and will grow more respectable and mighty

But seriously, why is it that men who know enough to write English, put the cart before the horse on so vast a scale, with such richness of rhetorical ornamentation? ple a truth as that it is not traffic but industry which renders a nation great and powerful! Is it necessary to repeat the familiar demonstration so clearly given by Adam Smith, the father of political economy, and reproduced by all sound writers since, that the commerce of a country is entirely dependent on its production, and above all that its foreign commerce is but trilling in comparison with its internal, and cannot be otherwise? We hope not. Go for the annexation of the Sandwich Islands, if you please, but do it on reasons that have some reason in them. To be the greatest race of traders is not the peculiar glory which one would desire for his country.

The women por tion of the Convention, at their meeting on Thursday afternoon, determined to call a meeting at the Tabernacle for this evening, to place before the public the question as to how far woman's right to work in the Temperance cause extends. They have for speakers Dr. Snodgrass, of Baltimore, well known in the South as a Temperance orator Stone, of whom we have before spoken, will make the principal speech, and he followed by Emily Clark, of Laroy, who presented the petition for the Maine Law to the Legislature, signed by 28,000 women of the Empire State. We sak for them a candid hearing, and have no doubt they will have a large audience.

BUFFALO, Friday, May 13, 1853. A terrible calamity has just occurred in this city. The uilding on Main st., occupied as a banking house by Messrs. Robinson & Co. and Robert Codd, while undergoing repairs, suddenly caved in, the roof and every story being carried through to the ground. It is feared that 15 or 20 workmen and some persons ocupying the upper story are beneath the rains. The utmost excitement prevails and the Fire Department and a large number of citizens are clearing away the ruins as fast as possible The front of the shops had been taken out for rep irs and the building was left without proper support.

BUFFALO, Friday Evening, May 13, 1853, The building was five stories high, and the entire inside and back wall fell into the cellar, carrying the men who were at work on each story down with it. Animmense pile of lumber has been got out, and five men have been rescued alive-one with his leg badly crushed and the others seriously injured. Three dead bodies have been recovered-one that of John Hufford, the master carpenter, whose head was completely crushed. While digging in the rear a man felt his hand tightly clasped by one beneath the ruins, and, after clearing away, a boy was discovered who had been jammed in between the imbers for upward of an hour. The men worked hard to escue him, the little fellow bearing up bravely, though much crushed and exhausted. He was at length restored o the arms of his father, who stood by in speechless agony watching the efforts of the men. The boy's name is Geo. Kinskey-he is much injured internally, but hopes are entertained for his recovery. The Fire Department is now organized to work during the night. It is supposed that fifteen persons are still beneath the ruins, all of whom are doubtless dead, as the ruins are piled up in a thick solid mass from the cellar to the second story-Much excitement prevails throughout the city.

Justice of the Supreme Court. Fortunately there is the right of appeal to a full bench; and in a multitude of counsellors there is wisdom. That wisdom is manifested in our paper of this morning, in a decision made by Judges Edwards, Roosevelt and Mitchell in the case of the People against J. J. Hicks. The question was upon the validity of Judge Morris's decision, discharging the witness, Hicks, who was committed by the Recorder for refusing to testify in relation to certain fraud dent practices among the members of the City Government. Hicks got out through a writ of habeas corpus, issued by Judge Morris, who backed up his discharge of the witness with an argument of considerable length, full of special pleading, which constantly reminded the reader of the advocate instead of the judge. The whole matter came before the full bench for adjudication, and the decision (which we print this morning) was prepared by Judge Reosevelt. We hardly need refer to the points. They show that the course of Judge Morris was a flagrant outrage upon law, whether a sin of malice or ignorance, the reader must guess for himself. The Legislature has explicitly prohibited a Judge before whem a habeas is returned from adjudicating the case farther than to inquire -First: Whether on the face of the commitment, a contempt was specially and plainly charged; and, secondly-Whether the officer, whose name it bore, had authority to commit in such cases. Here was the extent of Judge Morris's authority: yet in defiance thereof he went on to But enough: the full authority of the Supreme Court
